

ALM HIJACKERS REPORTED READY TO FREE HOSTAGES

ETTA (UPI). — Arab hijacker plane carrying 247 passengers in exchange for two hostages and free flight to Malta, airport sources said.

KLM spokesman in Amsterdam said the hijackers had agreed to release the passengers if the plane was allowed to fly to Malta, a process lasting two hours — but the plane is still closed.

KLM jet, carrying 247 passengers, 17 crew members and three Arab terrorists landed here today on its fourth stop since it seized Sunday evening.

The hijackers said that the plane was carrying 247 passengers, 17 crew members and three Arab terrorists. The hijackers said that the plane was carrying 247 passengers, 17 crew members and three Arab terrorists.

The hijackers said that the plane was carrying 247 passengers, 17 crew members and three Arab terrorists. The hijackers said that the plane was carrying 247 passengers, 17 crew members and three Arab terrorists.

Sharon amendment referred to committee

Jerusalem Post Knesset Reporter

Asset excitement about the motion to allow election candidates (like Aluf Arif Sharon) to be in the reserve army fixed last yesterday morning when the Alignment made a head-on assault on the motion to Committee. This approved by the House, by 84 against three.

Unusually high attendance (shown by the voting figures) led to the expected showdown in the Alignment and the Law Committee was amended to prepare a draft bill, the constitutional issue of states in Army service, but it could emerge, because the Alignment is still reeling.

Likud would allow army reserve permission to serve, while the Law Committee till Thursday allow candidates to serve only after December 10 — the statutory final date before the December 31 elections.

The Alignment does not want to accept the Likud line, in the light of its party bodies' negative decision last week by 24 against 16 — motivated by a fear of "politics creeping into the army." The Likud could not possibly accept the December 10 cut-off because Aluf Sharon will not agree.

Some Alignment M.K.s suggested privately that Aluf Sharon might be allowed to stay in uniform by some sort of administrative action rather than by amending the law. The Alignment does not relish a confrontation with the Likud in an open vote because of Aluf Sharon's popularity.

One Likud M.K. told The Post that his bloc was not pushing the issue urgently, since it was up to the Alignment to make the move, and meanwhile Aluf Sharon would definitely stay in uniform till December 10, whatever happened. The issue would not be taken up in the Law Committee till Thursday at the earliest — and perhaps only next week, The Post was told.

STRONGMAN IOANNIDES HEADS MILITARY POLICE

reek junta purges armed forces; move to bar counter-coup

NS. — The two-day-old Greek regime yesterday sacked the army's top general in a step apparently designed to prevent any possible army counter-attack after Sunday's coup.

Dismissal of the commanders army and air force and the police chief was announced by President Phaedon Gekas after tanks and heavily armed troops were ordered back to barracks from central Athens.

Life in the city returned to normal with a curfew yesterday.

The new regime was also reported to have purged the hierarchy of the vast police network, built up by Ioannides in the seven years since he overthrew Greece's parliamentary government.

The new government, apparently at its military grip over the country, held its first cabinet meeting to decide on the outlines of its policy.

Expected that the new Prime Minister, Andreas Papandreu, will shortly announce what the new government means by its proclamation to restore peace and to the Greek people.

Before announcing any plans, the new government was clearly determined to prevent any moves counter-coup by supporters of the ousted Ioannides.

President George Papadopoulos has remained under guard at his villa since the military chiefs expected that the new Prime Minister, Andreas Papandreu, will shortly announce what the new government means by its proclamation to restore peace and to the Greek people.

Gen. Phaedon Gekas, new President of Greece, at yesterday's cabinet meeting in Athens. (AP radio photo)

General Dimitrios Ioannides, commander of the tough and highly influential military police.

General Ioannides, regarded as an austere hardliner and advocate of strict law and order, has shied away from publicity, but he showed his powerful position on Sunday at a private meeting with Greek publishers.

He warned them that although army censorship had been lifted, they should be extremely careful not to contravene the press provisions under martial law, which still remains in force.

Ioannides is said to have masterminded the bloodless coup, and personally arrested Papadopoulos when the takeover began early on Sunday.

The sources said Ioannides, who took no part in the new government, directed the coup because he opposed Papadopoulos' political liberalization policy, and because the former President's use of tanks to suppress a

Arab summit opens with 'battle' statement

Leaders of 15 Arab states met yesterday in a summit session in Algiers amid a flurry of conflicting statements on the Middle East war-and-peace strategy they are to map after the October war with Israel.

The meeting was opened by Algerian President Boumedienne who was quoted as saying that the Arabs "should make real preparations for the coming battles which will have to be decisive."

Jordan warning on Arafat

Jerusalem Post Arab Affairs Reporter

Jordan warned the Arab summit last night that it will not take part in the proposed peace conference if the Arab leaders recognize Yasser Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) as the sole representative of the Palestinian people.

Amman Radio said that the warning was submitted to the summit through the Jordanian chief delegate at the conference, Bahjat Talhouni. The radio added that the Jordanian delegation had warned Arab Foreign Ministers earlier that it would resist any Arab decision on a "unilateral" representation of the Palestinians.

AGREE TO PARLEY

One report from Algiers said that the Foreign Ministers agreed to Arab participation in the Israel-Arab peace conference scheduled in Geneva on December 15. Another report said that the Foreign Ministers recommended that Egypt and Syria first attend the preliminary session wanted by Israel prior to the Israel election. Jordan and the Palestinians would join later, with the rest of the Arab states would sign a peace treaty once the conference proves to be successful. There had been no official confirmation to these reports.

Presidents Boumedienne of Algeria and Sadat of Egypt, and King Faisal of Saudi Arabia, left to right, leave monarch's residence at Club des Pins in Algiers yesterday prior to opening of Arab summit. (AP radio photo)

2 die in Paris Metro blast

PARIS (AP). — A powerful bomb ripped the ticket office of a Paris Metro station during the evening rush hour yesterday, killing two persons and wounding at least six others.

A Metro spokesman said one of the fatalities was apparently carrying the charge. The bomb went off at 5:30 p.m. at the Louis Blanc Metro station in a working class district of the city's right bank.

The ticket office area was wrecked. The spokesman said the explosion was probably caused by a plastic charge. He said he did not know the reason for the explosion.

SOLDIER KILLED

One Israeli soldier was killed on Sunday afternoon in the artillery exchanges with the Egyptians south of Abu Suweir, southwest of Ismailiya, the Army spokesman reported yesterday.

The soldier's family has been informed.

Poland's crack paratroops said going to Egypt

WASHINGTON (AP). — U.S. intelligence reports say Poland is sending members of its elite paratrooper division to Egypt, ostensibly to provide logistics support for the U.N. Emergency Force. According to these reports, about 800 members of Poland's crack 8th Airborne Division are to be deployed to Egypt. The first elements were said to have arrived in Cairo recently.

4-hour exchange at Suez Canal

Jerusalem Post Military Correspondent

TEL AVIV. — More serious violations of the cease-fire were reported from the Suez front yesterday.

Egyptian troops, using 82mm mortars and automatic weapons fired at Israeli troops at a point north of the Small Bitter Lake (Kilometre 121 of the Suez Canal) for over four consecutive hours. The exchange began at 8:40 a.m. and continued until 12:30 p.m. Israeli troops returned the fire.

Nixon hands tapes to judge

WASHINGTON. — Tape recordings of President Nixon's conversations on the Watergate affair were handed over to District Council judge John Sirica yesterday.

Nixon's counsel, Mr. Fred Buzhardt, delivered the tapes in a grey, metal container resembling a tool box to Sirica in his chambers. Another White House lawyer, Leonard Garment, said the tapes contained tapes of Nixon's Watergate-related conversations recorded in the White House and the adjacent Executive Office building.

No progress at 101; more talks tomorrow

Jerusalem Post Staff

No progress was made at yesterday's meeting at Kilometre 101 between Israeli representative, Aluf Yariv, and General Gamasy of Egypt. The views of the two governments on the vexed issue of disengagement of their forces remained far apart, according to informed sources, and the likelihood increased that the problem would be transferred unsolved to the peace conference in Geneva on December 15.

The crux of the problem still remains Egypt's insistence that a substantial part of its forces must remain on the east bank of the Suez Canal in any disengagement arrangement. Israel will countenance only token policing forces on the east bank.

'Hermon posts for prisoners'

Prime Minister Golda Meir has told a Norwegian newspaper Israel would be willing to turn over two posts on Mount Hermon to the U.N. if the Syrians would release the Israeli prisoners they hold, Israel Radio reported last night.

The interview was given to the Oslo paper "Arbeiderbladet." In it Mrs. Meir also said that the Bar-Lev Line was held by only 500 to 600 soldiers when the Egyptians launched their attack on October 6.

Eban sees Keating on peace parley

By DAVID LANDAU

Jerusalem Post Diplomatic Correspondent

Foreign Minister Abba Eban yesterday conveyed to the U.S. Ambassador the Cabinet's agreement in principle to take part in the peace conference at Geneva on December 15. Mr. Eban met with Kenneth Keating for over an hour in Jerusalem.

Officials said that a formal invitation to the peace conference — anticipated in Sunday's Cabinet communiqué — had not yet reached Jerusalem. When it did, the Cabinet would study it and draft Israel's formal reply, setting out under what conditions Israel agrees to participate in the talks.

A senior official said yesterday that Israel's first move upon receipt of the formal invitation (probably from the U.S. and the Soviet Union jointly) would be to inquire which other parties had been invited. U.S. Secretary Kissinger's intention was that Israel, Egypt, Syria, Jordan, the U.S. and the U.S.S.R. should take part in the peace conference, with the U.N. Secretary-General present too as an observer.

Brezhnev pressing for Indian port facilities

NEW DELHI. — Soviet Communist Party General Secretary Leonid Brezhnev arrived yesterday and government sources said he may use his five-day visit to press for permanent port facilities on the Indian Ocean for Soviet naval ships in exchange for aid and arms.

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, who met Brezhnev and other Russian officials at the airport, reportedly does not want to give the Soviet Union permanent ports on the Indian Ocean for fear of damaging India's neutrality, the sources said.

B-G: No change

TEL AVIV. — No significant change took place yesterday in the condition of David Ben-Gurion, which continues to be serious, the Sheba Medical Centre reported yesterday.

Ethiopia wants U.S. arms to meet Somalia

NEW YORK (UPI). — Emperor Haile Selassie said in an interview published in "Newsweek" that Ethiopia has asked Washington for more arms for self-defense.

The emperor said: "You yourself know what Somalia has been given. What we are asking is far less than they have amassed and only for the purpose of our security and defence."

Tourist!

30 % Reductions Duty & Tax-free export scheme Women's & Men's Suede & Leather Wear The Leader in Suede & Leather Leather handbags department

I. SCHNEIDMAN & sons

TEL AVIV: 25 Rehov Zamenzhoff (near St. King George) Tel. 22666 KIBUTZ AYELET HANAHAR VISIT OUR DEPARTMENT STORE 128 Rehov Dizengoff, Tel Aviv

Aled Couture

The Great Look in Knitwear at iwanir The Fashion House you can rely on Specializing in Knitwear and Leatherwear

TEL AVIV: 129 Dizengoff St., 31 Allenby Rd. Dan Hotel, Hilton Hotel, Sheraton Hotel HAIFA: Dan Carmel Hotel HERZLIYA: Acadia Hotel

BEFORE RENEWING YOUR INSURANCE CONSULT

David Sofer Ltd. 5 REHOV KEREN HAYESSOD. TEL. 222589, JERUSALEM. Experts in Motor Insurance.

YOUR TRAVEL EXPERTS WITH MORE THAN 50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

Orient Shipping Agency Ltd. 5 REHOV KEREN HAYESSOD. TEL. 223004, 223011. JERUSALEM.

THE WEATHER

Forecast: Fair.
Weather synopsis: High pressure covers the Eastern Mediterranean.

Station	Yesterday's High-Low	Today's Forecast
Jerusalem	51-63	5-15
Golan	45-55	3-11
Nahariya	47-57	3-11
Safed	47-57	3-11
Haifa Port	47-57	3-11
Tiberias	47-57	3-11
Nazareth	47-57	3-11
Atula	47-57	3-11
Shomron	47-57	3-11
Tel Aviv	47-57	3-11
Lod Airport	47-57	3-11
Yotvata	47-57	3-11
Beer Sheva	47-57	3-11
Eilat	47-57	3-11
Tiran Straits	47-57	3-11

Social and Personal

The President, Prof. Ephraim Katzir, yesterday received students from 24 countries attending the Foreign Ministry's Afro-Asian Institute in Haifa.

Lord and Lady Shinwell yesterday visited Boys Town in Jerusalem, together with Mr. and Mrs. Harold Foster and Mr. and Mrs. Rosser Chinn, leaders of the United Israel Appeal in Britain.

Gad Ya'acobi, Deputy Transport Minister, will speak on Political and Economic Appraisals of the War and its Aftermath at the Vocal Newspaper to be held at Beit Pezner in Haifa at 7 o'clock this evening. Dan Padir will speak on The Press During the War and the Emergency.

ARRIVALS

Professor Bernard Lewis, of the School of Oriental and African Studies, London University, as guest of the Jerusalem Foundation.

Mr. Bernard Cherrick, Vice-President of the Hebrew University, from a U.S. and Israel Bonds mission in the U.S. Shaul Ben-Sion, of the Association of Immigrants of North America, from a mission to France, Switzerland and Spain.

New French envoy here
LOD AIRPORT. — Mr. Jean Herly arrived here last night to take up his appointment as French Ambassador.

He told waiting newsmen that he hoped he would have the opportunity "to deepen the dialogue between the two countries and cultivate Franco-Israeli friendship."

New dayanim

The President yesterday handed letters of appointment to Rabbi Abraham Shapiro and Rabbi Shalom Mizrahi as dayanim on the Rabbinical High Court and to Rabbi Simha Isaacson Kook as dayan on the District Rabbinical Court in Rehovot.

The ceremony was held at Beit Hanassi in the presence of Chief Rabbi Shlomo Goren and Ovadia Yosef, Religious Affairs Minister Zerah Warhaftig and the Director-General of the Religious Affairs Ministry, Rabbi A.J. Dolgin.

The new dayanim will take up their posts during the next few days.

Reading of voting age amendment turns into debate on elections

Jerusalem Post Knesset Reporter

The first reading of an amendment to the Elections Law which would give the vote to all citizens who reach the age of 18 by December 31 — election day — provided an opening for a general airing of demands in the Knesset yesterday to postpone the elections, reopen the lists of candidates, and set up a national unity government.

It also provided the occasion for the former Justice Minister, 71-year-old Y.S. Shapiro, who attacked the Knesset Speaker and the Government.

Mr. Shapiro said that the national interest had not been decisive in fixing December 31 as the election date. The matter had been decided because of the interest of a party (Labour, of which he is a member) which did not want to leave too much time for the nation to think how it had reached the present pass.

He blamed Knesset Speaker Yeshayahu for not having called the House into regular winter session, after the Succot holiday, as he was statutorily empowered to do. As a result, the Knesset was inactive, making it impossible to table motions for the agenda or submit private members' bills.

He blamed the parties for refusing to reopen the lists of candidates and to allow new lists to be submitted. The elections could easily have been postponed for six to 12 months, and the life of the present Knesset extended, he asserted.

The present Government had a full mandate to negotiate the peace until there are new elections, he said.

After Mr. Shapiro sat down, Speaker Yeshayahu argued that he had not contravened any law by not calling the Knesset into regular session.

Military funeral for Yohanan Comay

Jerusalem Post Reporter

Yohanan Comay was buried yesterday in an army funeral attended by many officers and men of his unit; faculty and staff of the Technion, where he worked; the Director-General of the Foreign Ministry and other senior officials; as well as large numbers of friends, as well as members of the family. Comay, a lieutenant in the reserves, was the son of Michael Comay, former ambassador in London.

The cause of death was not meningitis as was at first thought, and is still being investigated.

A group of Israeli soldiers stand at attention and salute the unknown Egyptian soldiers they have just buried.

Vain search for crew of sunk Cypriot freighter

ASHDOD. — Navy frogmen — joined by a civilian volunteer — yesterday entered the search for 13 men still missing from the Cypriot freighter, Annette, which disappeared into the breakwater of the port here and sank during a storm last Friday night.

So far only three survivors, and eight bodies have been found of the 19 crew members and 5 Israeli repair men who were on board the 4,000-ton freighter when it sank.

Yesterday's underwater search was restricted to the immediate area of the wreck, in the 15-metre deep waters close to the breakwater. The civilian volunteer, Gad Skornik, of Tel Aviv, told "Nim" that the ship had broken in half from the force of the impact, and he had been able to swim into the wreck and search a number of cabins. No bodies were found, either in the wreck or along the base of the breakwater, which has been thoroughly searched.

Relatives and friends of the four Israeli repairmen still missing, 17, only one, Yacov Greenberg, survived, lined the breakwater morning waiting for news. (Nim)

Conductor Paray taken ill

Jerusalem Post Staff

TEL AVIV. — French conductor, Paul Paray, 87, was taken to hospital yesterday when he fell ill a short time before he was due to open the first concert of the Israel Philharmonic Orchestra's new season at the Maim Auditorium here.

The veteran conductor was released later in the evening, but was still confined to bed pending tests. The concert was postponed, as was that set for today in Haifa.

No information was available as to the nature of Mr. Paray's illness. He arrived last week to conduct the entire Fourth Series of about 10 concerts.

Low death rate among wounded

Jerusalem Post Reporter

The death rate among Israeli soldiers wounded in the recent war was one of the lowest in modern military history. Health Minister Victor Shemtov told the annual international board meeting of Jerusalem's Sha'are Zedek Hospital last night. He added that only 1,700-1,800 wounded men requiring long-term rehabilitation remain in hospital now.

Mr. Shemtov was handed the Sha'are Zedek Centenary Medal by hospital director Prof. David Meir. Prof. Meir praised the front-line treatment the wounded received and said that only two soldiers reached the hospital in a state of shock, requiring emergency treatment.

He added that one of the hardest jobs the hospital staff faced in the first days of the war, was gunning down away some of the 600 wounded men who offered their services.

Mayor Teddy Kollek delivered greetings to the meeting, which was chaired by Mr. Max Stern of New York.

Yadlin demands resignation of Labour magazine editor

Jerusalem Post Political Reporter

TEL AVIV. — Labour Party Secretary-General Aharon Yadlin last night called on David Shoham to resign as editor of the party's weekly magazine, "Ot," because he had joined an attack on the party and the Government. Mr. Yadlin said he had no confidence in Mr. Shoham.

Mr. Yadlin was replying to a question at a Labour Party meeting here concerning the political activities of Mr. Shoham, a former public relations executive who left his business to become "Ot" editor a few years ago at the request of then Secretary-General Arye Eliav.

Mr. Yadlin said Mr. Shoham could not be editor of the party's official organ and team up with its opponents at the same time.

Party revolt against Meir, Dayan quashed

Jerusalem Post Political Reporter

TEL AVIV. — The Central Committee of the Labour Party is expected to reconform its confidence in Premier Golda Meir when it meets tomorrow, authoritative party sources said yesterday. This is the result of a concerted effort by the ex-Mapa leadership within the party to quash an internal attack on the Prime Minister which, they felt, could have a direct effect on next month's elections.

Finance Minister Pinhas Sapir and Tel Aviv Mayor Yehoshua Rabinowitz have reportedly seen to it that the message — that there is to be no attempt to assassinate Mrs. Meir — was passed on to all their supporters down the line. The ex-Mapa stand crystallized at a closed weekend meeting, Labour Party circles said yesterday. That meeting was attended by Mr. Sapir, Mr. Rabinowitz, Labour Minister

Yosef Almogi, Commerce Minister Haim Bar-Lev, Coalition whip Moshe Baran and Avraham Ofer, M.K., among others. (Messrs. Rabinowitz, Almogi and Baran head the party branches in Tel Aviv, Haifa and Jerusalem, respectively.) The weekend meeting resolved to oppose any attacks by "minimalists" on Mrs. Meir or on Defence Minister Moshe Dayan.

However, the same meeting reportedly resolved to press for certain "dovish" revisions in the party's election platform.

The top-level revisers are expected to include the Finance Minister and Foreign Minister Aharon Yadlin for ex-Mapa, Minister-without-Portfolio Yisrael Galili for ex-Ahud Ha'avoda, and Mr. Dayan for ex-Rafi. They are to produce a compromise formula that will preserve party unity and provide guidelines for a revised election platform.

EBAN ON GENEVA

It depends what you mean by peace

Jerusalem Post Diplomatic Correspondent

Foreign Minister Abba Eban said yesterday that if the Arabs agreed to a full peace involving diplomatic relations, commercial contacts, economic relations, and the normal movement of people and mass across boundaries, then the territorial issue would become "much less agonizing and acute."

If, on the other hand, "peace" was to be merely another word for "cease-fire" — nothing more than an interlude between wars — then Israel's "indispensable conditions" of territorial security would be "more severe."

Yadlin demands resignation of Labour magazine editor

Jerusalem Post Political Reporter

TEL AVIV. — Labour Party Secretary-General Aharon Yadlin last night called on David Shoham to resign as editor of the party's weekly magazine, "Ot," because he had joined an attack on the party and the Government. Mr. Yadlin said he had no confidence in Mr. Shoham.

Mr. Yadlin was replying to a question at a Labour Party meeting here concerning the political activities of Mr. Shoham, a former public relations executive who left his business to become "Ot" editor a few years ago at the request of then Secretary-General Arye Eliav.

Mr. Yadlin said Mr. Shoham could not be editor of the party's official organ and team up with its opponents at the same time.

Carless days from Dec. 1

Jerusalem Post Reporter

The once-a-week carless day programme goes into effect on December 16, with each motorist choosing his own day.

A "day" for the purposes of the regulations, is the 24-hour period beginning at two a.m. and ending at two a.m. the following day. Drivers who choose Saturday will receive a bonus: they may get on the road 30 minutes after sundown rather than wait until two a.m. Sunday.

The carless day remains fixed from week to week, and if a motorist wishes to change days he must apply to the local licensing office — not earlier than six months from his earlier choice of day.

Windshield identification tags showing the day on which the car may not be lawfully used will be distributed at post offices on presentation of the vehicle licence, between December 9 and 14. The licence will be marked with the chosen day. Persons on active duty who cannot apply to a post office personally or by proxy, will be able to get their tags at their reg. licensing office whenever they come for it.

Penalties for violation of the less day regulations have been at IL$3,000 fine and/or suspension of licence for three months. A caught violating the rules will be driven to the nearest police station and kept there until 8 a.m. following day.

"Cars" include commercial vehicles under 2,500 kg.

The Transport Ministry's information office in Jerusalem (number 02-233306) will answer queries concerning the carless days.

The following vehicles are exempt from the regulations: military vehicles, police cars and vans, gency vehicles such as ambulances and fire trucks, tow cars, belonging to handicapped persons.

The Sabbath will be the day for all Netanyahu municipal vehicles, the city council de yesterday.

Young airport porter pleads guilty to big diamond theft

TEL AVIV. — A former porter at Lod Airport admitted in the District Court here on Sunday that he had stolen a $500,000 consignment of diamonds from a B.E.A. flight from London last April.

David Cohen, 20, admitted to stealing the diamonds after two witnesses for the prosecution — Shlomo Attias and Emile Alro, who worked on the same off-loading team as Cohen, took the stand. The two, both serving five-year terms for their part in the robbery, explained how Cohen had found the sack of diamonds on board the plane and had given it to Attias, the deputy foreman of the team. Attias had then deposited it outside the airport fence.

Alro — whose eight-year-old son was kidnapped last June by persons still unknown, apparently following a dispute among the thieves as to the division of the spoils — told the court he had then picked up the sack and taken it to his mother's home in Mahane Yisrael. It was only then, he said, that he discovered it contained diamonds.

At this point, Cohen's lawyer, Zvi Lidsky, interrupted the testimony and told the Court that his client admitted to the charges. After asking Cohen if this was so, the Court convicted him of the crime.

Pinhas Rose backs Dayan

Jerusalem Post Political Reporter

TEL AVIV. — The veteran president of the Independent Liberal Party, Mr. Pinhas Rosen, has proposed that his party support Defence Minister Moshe Dayan as the successor to Premier Golda Meir. The Justice Minister surprised his party leadership with this proposal, apparently made in response to a demand from Deputy Prime Minister Yehuda Shamir that Dayan resign for his handling of the war.

Mr. Rosen, known for his views, explained that he supported Mr. Dayan because "there is other political personality capable of convincing the nation of the for territorial compromise."

Allon: Arab debacle would make talks more difficult

By ABRAHAM RABINOVICH

Jerusalem Post Reporter

Deputy Prime Minister Yigal Alon said last night that a resumption of the war was not desirable because it would result in a military disaster for the Arabs that would make them more difficult to negotiate with.

Mr. Alon, speaking at a seminar at the Van Leer Institute on the Arab-Israeli conflict, said that a disengagement of Egyptian and Israeli troops was essential in order to remove the possibility of war starting up as the result of some local commander's initiative. In such a disengagement, he said, Israel was not seeking "geographic symmetry" with both sides giving up an equal amount of territory, but strategic symmetry.

Mr. Alon expressed the hope that the peace conference would discuss the nature of the peace to be established — including the possibility of mutual cooperation — before it discusses maps. "Will peace just be a question of Salama (peace) or also Sulha (reconciliation)?" He said that Israel should negotiate at the peace conference with each Arab participant separately since the negotiations after the War of Independence had shown that, when several Arab countries negotiate jointly, the extremist viewpoint prevails.

"There is no problem, including that of the Palestinians, that can't be solved by negotiations. There is none that can be solved by war."

In an apparent slap at Defence Minister Moshe Dayan, Mr. Alon said the war had disproved those who thought that a de facto peace had already been created in the area. "No temporary solution can be permanent," he said.

Japan's 'deviation' from neutrality, amity rapped

Jerusalem Post Staff

The Foreign Ministry in Jerusalem hit out yesterday at Japan's pro-Arab statement of last week, terming it a "deviation from (Japan's) declared policy of neutrality," and a "renunciation... of its previous policy of 'friendship to all'."

In an official statement, the Foreign Ministry charged Japan with knowingly adopting the "distorted" Arab interpretation of Security Council Resolution 242, Israel, it said, had been "distressed to find a power like Japan yielding to the pressure of our enemies and to their threats against the industry and economy of Japan."

The Israeli statement recalled that Japan's pro-Arab pronouncement had "stultified" its declaration of readiness to play a role in bringing peace to the Middle East. Japan's demand for Israel's total withdrawal "at the very moment when the prospects of a settlement through negotiations are becoming real" in fact reduced the chance of a just and durable peace, the Israeli statement asserted.

The Israeli statement recalled that Resolution 242 had not called for total withdrawal — as Japan had — nor had it spoken of "the legitimate rights of the Palestinian people." It had spoken only of a just settlement of the refugee problem.

Party revolt against Meir, Dayan quashed

By MARK SEGAL

Jerusalem Post Political Reporter

TEL AVIV. — The Central Committee of the Labour Party is expected to reconform its confidence in Premier Golda Meir when it meets tomorrow, authoritative party sources said yesterday. This is the result of a concerted effort by the ex-Mapa leadership within the party to quash an internal attack on the Prime Minister which, they felt, could have a direct effect on next month's elections.

Finance Minister Pinhas Sapir and Tel Aviv Mayor Yehoshua Rabinowitz have reportedly seen to it that the message — that there is to be no attempt to assassinate Mrs. Meir — was passed on to all their supporters down the line. The ex-Mapa stand crystallized at a closed weekend meeting, Labour Party circles said yesterday. That meeting was attended by Mr. Sapir, Mr. Rabinowitz, Labour Minister

Yosef Almogi, Commerce Minister Haim Bar-Lev, Coalition whip Moshe Baran and Avraham Ofer, M.K., among others. (Messrs. Rabinowitz, Almogi and Baran head the party branches in Tel Aviv, Haifa and Jerusalem, respectively.) The weekend meeting resolved to oppose any attacks by "minimalists" on Mrs. Meir or on Defence Minister Moshe Dayan.

However, the same meeting reportedly resolved to press for certain "dovish" revisions in the party's election platform.

The top-level revisers are expected to include the Finance Minister and Foreign Minister Aharon Yadlin for ex-Mapa, Minister-without-Portfolio Yisrael Galili for ex-Ahud Ha'avoda, and Mr. Dayan for ex-Rafi. They are to produce a compromise formula that will preserve party unity and provide guidelines for a revised election platform.

Yadlin demands resignation of Labour magazine editor

Jerusalem Post Political Reporter

TEL AVIV. — Labour Party Secretary-General Aharon Yadlin last night called on David Shoham to resign as editor of the party's weekly magazine, "Ot," because he had joined an attack on the party and the Government. Mr. Yadlin said he had no confidence in Mr. Shoham.

Mr. Yadlin was replying to a question at a Labour Party meeting here concerning the political activities of Mr. Shoham, a former public relations executive who left his business to become "Ot" editor a few years ago at the request of then Secretary-General Arye Eliav.

Mr. Yadlin said Mr. Shoham could not be editor of the party's official organ and team up with its opponents at the same time.

EBAN ON GENEVA

It depends what you mean by peace

Jerusalem Post Diplomatic Correspondent

Foreign Minister Abba Eban said yesterday that if the Arabs agreed to a full peace involving diplomatic relations, commercial contacts, economic relations, and the normal movement of people and mass across boundaries, then the territorial issue would become "much less agonizing and acute."

If, on the other hand, "peace" was to be merely another word for "cease-fire" — nothing more than an interlude between wars — then Israel's "indispensable conditions" of territorial security would be "more severe."

The Foreign Minister was addressing an Israel Bonds delegation in Jerusalem.

He said that Israel's first task at a peace conference should therefore be to find out what the Arabs have in mind by "peace." The boundary issue while of course a vitally important component in any peace settlement — was a factor of the

Allon: Arab debacle would make talks more difficult

By ABRAHAM RABINOVICH

Jerusalem Post Reporter

Deputy Prime Minister Yigal Alon said last night that a resumption of the war was not desirable because it would result in a military disaster for the Arabs that would make them more difficult to negotiate with.

Mr. Alon, speaking at a seminar at the Van Leer Institute on the Arab-Israeli conflict, said that a disengagement of Egyptian and Israeli troops was essential in order to remove the possibility of war starting up as the result of some local commander's initiative. In such a disengagement, he said, Israel was not seeking "geographic symmetry" with both sides giving up an equal amount of territory, but strategic symmetry.

Mr. Alon expressed the hope that the peace conference would discuss the nature of the peace to be established — including the possibility of mutual cooperation — before it discusses maps. "Will peace just be a question of Salama (peace) or also Sulha (reconciliation)?" He said that Israel should negotiate at the peace conference with each Arab participant separately since the negotiations after the War of Independence had shown that, when several Arab countries negotiate jointly, the extremist viewpoint prevails.

"There is no problem, including that of the Palestinians, that can't be solved by negotiations. There is none that can be solved by war."

In an apparent slap at Defence Minister Moshe Dayan, Mr. Alon said the war had disproved those who thought that a de facto peace had already been created in the area. "No temporary solution can be permanent," he said.

Japan's 'deviation' from neutrality, amity rapped

Jerusalem Post Staff

The Foreign Ministry in Jerusalem hit out yesterday at Japan's pro-Arab statement of last week, terming it a "deviation from (Japan's) declared policy of neutrality," and a "renunciation... of its previous policy of 'friendship to all'."

In an official statement, the Foreign Ministry charged Japan with knowingly adopting the "distorted" Arab interpretation of Security Council Resolution 242, Israel, it said, had been "distressed to find a power like Japan yielding to the pressure of our enemies and to their threats against the industry and economy of Japan."

The Israeli statement recalled that Japan's pro-Arab pronouncement had "stultified" its declaration of readiness to play a role in bringing peace to the Middle East. Japan's demand for Israel's total withdrawal "at the very moment when the prospects of a settlement through negotiations are becoming real" in fact reduced the chance of a just and durable peace, the Israeli statement asserted.

The Israeli statement recalled that Resolution 242 had not called for total withdrawal — as Japan had — nor had it spoken of "the legitimate rights of the Palestinian people." It had spoken only of a just settlement of the refugee problem.

Not every Sultan's a king

ASHDOD. — An Ashkelon man under remand for allegedly defrauding restaurants in his home town was yesterday brought to the Magistrates' Court here to answer Swiss charges that he skipped cheques there while posing as a member of the Moroccan royal family.

Moshe Sultan, 27, was ordered held for 15 days a week ago after two Ashkelon restaurateurs complained he had left their premises without bothering to pay. While in jail a list of questions came from a Swiss judge relating to his alleged activities in that country. According to this, on January 4 and 5 Sultan successively left two Geneva hotels without paying, and even borrowed money from one of the doormen.

On January 6 Sultan arrived at one of Lausanne's plush hotels — one which happens to have a special wing reserved for the Moroccan royal family. There he allegedly told the staff he was the nephew of Muhammad Sultan, of the said family, and received a sumptuous room. He also bought an expensive gold watch on credit, made phone calls, ordered a taxi, and borrowed 1,600 Swiss francs from the doorman.

Sultan had shown the hotel an Italian identity card. But the court was a bit surprised to hear that the hotel staff had not been bothered by his Israeli passport, which they also saw.

Sultan admitted to the Ashdod Magistrate, Judge Avraham Sasson, that he owed money for his stays at the hotels. But he denied having claimed to be Moroccan royalty, and then maintained he "really didn't owe" the hotels anything since he had left behind valuable clothing and other items.

The Geneva hotels say he owes them 748 and 496 Swiss francs respectively. The Lausanne establishment is seeking 4,750 francs. (Nim)

שורד התחבורה
שורד הניהול והרכב

סמל מדינה
174261

00001

CARLESS DAY TAG: This is what your tag will look like if you choose Sunday as your carless day. The next six letters in Hebrew alphabet will indicate the rest of the days of the week. (of handicapped drivers will bear tags with a "Peh," standing patur (exempt). The tags are to be affixed to the right-hand side of the front windshield. The left-hand tear-off section goes into vehicle licence.

Carless days from Dec. 1

Jerusalem Post Reporter

The once-a-week carless day programme goes into effect on December 16, with each motorist choosing his own day.

A "day" for the purposes of the regulations, is the 24-hour period beginning at two a.m. and ending at two a.m. the following day. Drivers who choose Saturday will receive a bonus: they may get on the road 30 minutes after sundown rather than wait until two a.m. Sunday.

The carless day remains fixed from week to week, and if a motorist wishes to change days he must apply to the local licensing office — not earlier than six months from his earlier choice of day.

Windshield identification tags showing the day on which the car may not be lawfully used will be distributed at post offices on presentation of the vehicle licence, between December 9 and 14. The licence will be marked with the chosen day. Persons on active duty who cannot apply to a post office personally or by proxy, will be able to get their tags at their reg. licensing office whenever they come for it.

Penalties for violation of the less day regulations have been at IL$3,000 fine and/or suspension of licence for three months. A caught violating the rules will be driven to the nearest police station and kept there until 8 a.m. following day.

"Cars" include commercial vehicles under 2,500 kg.

The Transport Ministry's information office in Jerusalem (number 02-233306) will answer queries concerning the carless days.

The following vehicles are exempt from the regulations: military vehicles, police cars and vans, gency vehicles such as ambulances and fire trucks, tow cars, belonging to handicapped persons.

The Sabbath will be the day for all Netanyahu municipal vehicles, the city council de yesterday.

Young airport porter pleads guilty to big diamond theft

TEL AVIV. — A former porter at Lod Airport admitted in the District Court here on Sunday that he had stolen a $500,000 consignment of diamonds from a B.E.A. flight from London last April.

David Cohen, 20, admitted to stealing the diamonds after two witnesses for the prosecution — Shlomo Attias and Emile Alro, who worked on the same off-loading team as Cohen, took the stand. The two, both serving five-year terms for their part in the robbery, explained how Cohen had found the sack of diamonds on board the plane and had given it to Attias, the deputy foreman of the team. Attias had then deposited it outside the airport fence.

Alro — whose eight-year-old son was kidnapped last June by persons still unknown, apparently following a dispute among the thieves as to the division of the spoils — told the court he had then picked up the sack and taken it to his mother's home in Mahane Yisrael. It was only then, he said, that he discovered it contained diamonds.

At this point, Cohen's lawyer, Zvi Lidsky, interrupted the testimony and told the Court that his client admitted to the charges. After asking Cohen if this was so, the Court convicted him of the crime.

Pinhas Rose backs Dayan

Jerusalem Post Political Reporter

TEL AVIV. — The veteran president of the Independent Liberal Party, Mr. Pinhas Rosen, has proposed that his party support Defence Minister Moshe Dayan as the successor to Premier Golda Meir. The Justice Minister surprised his party leadership with this proposal, apparently made in response to a demand from Deputy Prime Minister Yehuda Shamir that Dayan resign for his handling of the war.

Mr. Rosen, known for his views, explained that he supported Mr. Dayan because "there is other political personality capable of convincing the nation of the for territorial compromise."

The Minister for Foreign Affairs and the Staff of the Ministry share the grief of Michael and Joan Comay and the family who mourn the death of YOHANAN

The America-Israel Cultural Foundation mourns the untimely passing of JENNIE TOUREL ARTIST, TEACHER, FRIEND.

OUR GOOD FRIEND WALTER DANZIGER HAS PASSED AWAY

We hold his memory in high esteem. Our deep sympathy to the bereaved family.

HERMANN ELLERN
USUEL R. ELLERN
Dr. ELY MANI

Dr. Siegfried Shlomo Weiner

The funeral will leave the Rambam Hospital, Haifa, today, Tuesday, November 27, at 1 p.m. for the Hof Hacarmel Cemetery (main gate).

Blanca Loew-Weiner
Family and Friends

In deep sorrow, I announce the sudden death of my beloved brother.

Dr. Siegfried Shlomo Weiner

The funeral will leave the Rambam Hospital, Haifa, today, Tuesday, November 27, at 1 p.m. for the Hof Hacarmel Cemetery (main gate).

Blanca Loew-Weiner

Dayan: Trying to determine fate of missing

Jerusalem Post Military Correspondent
TEL AVIV. — Everything possible being done to determine the fate of men reported missing in action, to secure the bodies of those who have died, Defence Minister Moshe Dayan told a committee representing the families of the missing yesterday.

Dayan spoke after the wife of a missing pilot stated that her husband had been ejected from his aircraft and parachuted to safety. But his name was not included in the list of prisoners of war held by the Egyptians.

The Knesset is to hold a special session on Thursday on the demand to discuss the fate of the 70 in Syria and Egypt.

Mr. Dayan said he repeated cases were known in which prisoners of war had died or were killed after falling into enemy hands. Whenever the identity of persons could be established, families had been informed, he said.

Peruvian unit here with Uzis

DD AIRPORT. — A contingent of 60 Peruvian soldiers arrived on Sunday night to join the N. force, carrying Uzis, sub-machineguns and Hebrew phrasebooks. The Uzis were in the hands of the officers and NCOs; the other ranks were carrying Belgian F.N. automatic rifles. The phrasebook should help the group in such things as "What's your name?", "We're good friends," "Wonderful!" and "How do you get out of here?" (Itm)

TOBA FOR THE TROOPS brought by some 100 pairs of phylacteries, for distribution among Mizrahi members of the U.S. Presidents' delegation which arrived yesterday. They also brought (Freidlin)

U.S. Presidents' mission here for solidarity

LOD AIRPORT. — Jack Stein, president of the U.S. Jewish Presidents' Club, arrived yesterday with a 50-man delegation for a four-day visit "to tell Israel it is not alone."

Speaking on behalf of six million American Jews, represented in the 36 organizations whose leaders constitute the Presidents' Club, Mr. Stein told the press that the purpose of the mission was to study the impact of the Yom Kippur war on Israel, and to hear about Israel's financial, political and other needs.

Mr. Stein said he had detected "no sign of pressure" in the U.S. Government to force Israel to accept a position against its vital interests. "American Jews have no plan either for Israel — this is purely an Israel concern," he added.

GROWING READINESS FOR CONCESSIONS Only 1 in 20 sees Arabs really ready for peace

Jerusalem Post Reporter
Only five per cent of the population believe the Arab countries are "definitely" ready to discuss a real peace with Israel. But another 44 per cent said "perhaps" this was the case when interviewed last week by pollsters.

Although most Israelis do not believe Arab readiness for peace is a function of Israel territorial concessions, there is a growing readiness since the outbreak of the October war to withdraw from some of the territories, especially parts of Sinai.

There are some of the findings of a poll carried out November 19 and 20 by the Israel Institute of Applied Social Research and the Communications Institute of the Hebrew University. The November 19-20 poll, which encompassed 680 urban residents aged 20 and above, was part of a continuing survey.

Prof. Louis Gutman, director of the Applied Social Research Institute, told The Jerusalem Post last night that the continuing survey showed a considerable change in the public's attitude toward giving back occupied areas.

Some of the territories; last week this figure had swelled to 48 per cent (a reduction from the previous week's 53 per cent).

Only about 12 per cent of the population support the "Rogers Plan" — namely, that Israel should give up "all" the territories or "almost all, with slight adjustments." This figure is slightly higher than it was earlier.

Among the poll's other findings: • Some 71 per cent of the population do not believe the upcoming peace conference will result in a real peace in the coming months. • More than 50 per cent now believe the present cease-fire will end in renewed fighting (seven per cent fewer thought so a week earlier).

• Only 16 per cent believe the more territory Israel gives back, the greater will be the Arabs' readiness for peace.

Israel Arabs now 'more Arab, less Israeli'

By YOEL DAE
Jerusalem Post Reporter
HAIFA. — One of the results of the October war has been a strengthening of Arab nationalism — at the expense of Israel identification — among Israel Arabs, a government official said yesterday.

Shmuel Toledano, the Prime Minister's adviser on Arab affairs, told The Jerusalem Post that nationalistic elements in the Arab population of this country had been reinforced during the war. During the past several weeks, open support for the Arab cause — against Israel — has been voiced in some "Arab villages. It is learned that this nationalistic uprising is often backed by Rakah (the New Communist List), which has been drumming up more support than ever for the U.S.S.R. — the Arab States' ally in the October war.

Mr. Toledano said he believed this move towards Arab nationalism might well be seen in the coming elections, in the form of more Arab votes for Rakah.

At the same time, those Israel Arabs who identify with Israel have been going out of their way to prove their loyalty to the State, by participation in the war effort. But they have become less sure of themselves and are frequently on the defensive in the face of extreme nationalistic elements, who have become more vocal.

Mr. Toledano said his department was "following developments closely" with a view to limiting the nationalistic influences in certain sectors of the Arab population. He said the Government's policy had always been to work for the closer attachment of Arab citizens to the State of Israel, "without hurting their Arabism."

Idled workers to be re-trained for the jobs that need doing

By AARON SITTEER, Jerusalem Post Reporter
If you now earn your living carving turkeys in a hotel kitchen you may soon find yourself carving markings in shell cases. If you're a seamstress in a fashionable Tel Aviv dress house, chances are you will soon find yourself in an electronics workshop, soldering integrated circuits.

"Our Vocational Training Department is gearing itself for a massive, nationwide retraining programme," Arye Gur-El, Director-General of the Labour Ministry, told The Jerusalem Post in an interview this week. "The way things appear now," he said, "we will require between 20,000 and 25,000 new workers in the metal, electronics and mechanical equipment industries — and quite soon."

"It is no military secret that our economy will undergo a shift towards defence production, beginning in the coming months. The 20,000-25,000 figure I mentioned is only a preliminary estimate; it may go higher."

FROM TOURISM TO DEFENCE
According to Mr. Gur-El, those jobs will not be filled only by persons entering the work force for the first time, but also by veteran workers who will have to be re-trained. As a result, workers in moribund sectors of the economy — such as tourism, and higher-priced clothing manufacture — will be taught new skills and transferred to defence work.

Those transfers, Mr. Gur-El says, will introduce "new thinking" into Israel's minds about labour mobility. "Travelling a good distance to work each morning is foreign to very many of us," he stated. But if you live in Haifa and your job is going to be in Tel Aviv, then you will just have to learn to become a commuter — just as millions of workers overseas have learned to do.

LABOUR MINISTRY FUNDS
The retraining scheme will be financed by the Ministry of Labour with funds from its Unemployment Insurance Fund. Courses will be offered in various locations throughout the country. The scope of the programme will depend on two factors: the rate of demobilization of reservists and the rate of separation of non-mobilized workers from their present jobs. Many employers, though faced by a sharp drop in business, are reluctant to let their workers go because of the huge sums in severance pay these workers will claim.

Meanwhile, the Ministry has already prepared 140 retraining courses exclusively for 450 newly-arrived immigrant professionals. The programme will prepare them for careers in retailing, systems analysis, accountancy and other fields. There will also be a course in technical Hebrew for scientists. This programme will begin in a few weeks and end before next April. If successful, the scheme will be expanded.

Before the war, Israel's civilian labour force totalled 1,150,000 workers, not including approximately 60,000 Arab labourers who entered Israel daily from across the green line.

Making money out of monkeys Pilot plant for new export recommended

Jerusalem Post Economic Correspondent

Is it worth breeding monkeys in Israel for export? Haim Roet and David Rosenfelder, of Yaad (economic consultants), say it may be — providing the primates multiply well under open-air conditions in the sub-tropical climate of parts of Israel. They recommend experimenting with the aid of a pilot plant, to be financed by the Government or some other public body. The U.S. and Western Europe between them acquire 40,000 monkeys a year. They are mostly bought wild, have to be quarantined and conditioned.

The cost of conditioning a monkey (to make him healthy) is around $300-$400. There is little profit in that, since the monkeys are liable to suffer from the ordeal of being shipped overseas. They would require a month of re-conditioning — which would eat into profits.

An outdoor-bred animal, on the other hand, which is nurtured until it is three years old, could be exported for $970 in the U.S. or $930 in Europe. Re-conditioning expenses are not significant as a proportion of these larger sums.

The study estimates that the cost of a laboratory-bred animal abroad is around $2,000; so on the face of it exports could be profitable.

The trouble is that the figure of $2,000 is an estimate. (In specific cases, reported costs range from $714 in Holland to $1,900 in the U.S. and $3,000 in West Germany.) Scientific institutions abroad do not generally make a complete commercial costing, since they are fed with research grants, and do not operate under strictly business conditions.

The National Council for Research and Development, which sponsored the study, concludes cautiously that it might be best to breed monkeys for research bodies inside Israel, where consumption is currently 200-300 primates a year. "If marketing conditions change, it might be possible to use the experience and skills acquired in such an animal farm also for export," the Council adds.

Mr. Roet commented to The Jerusalem Post last night: "The subject of breeding is topical, because the availability of wild monkeys is decreasing in Africa, Asia and Latin America — as growing urbanism eats into the jungle areas."

LIFELINE TO HOSPITALS

By YAACOV ARDON
Jerusalem Post Reporter

IFA. — Innumerable wounded soldiers owe their lives to the medical equipment and medicines shipped to Israel by well-wishers abroad. Doctors who worked in the gical wards last month, often and the clock, have spared no effort to get the supplies to Israel at the least possible delay.

Individuals and institutions among these generous humanitarians who deserve citations for their work. The titular chairman of the Ramat Hashikma Society of Haifa, a voluntary body that sponsors research work and provides extra equipment beyond the official limits of the 700-bed hospital, is Captain Brenner, one of the directors of the Maritime Fruit Carriers. His ship at the Society, Mrs. Bruria, is reviewing its wartime role since last month, quotes Captain Brenner as saying "what the company can do, count on Captain Daniel Keller, assistant manager of M.F.C., set into motion staffs, associates, telephones, telex machines round the world the clock, and within a few days of Yom Kippur crates and bags began to arrive at the hospital and were used within the hospital. Captain Keller says that "a great deal is owed to El Al. They gave the shipments top priority at a time when space was really scarce. We had a special man stationed at Lod, day and night to take delivery to by-pass the red tape. It worked. The supplies kept coming."

The list of donors abroad is almost too long to list. Mrs. Cohen singles out Operations Wheelchair in London which last month sent a mobile x-ray and operating theatre equipment. From Los Angeles, Prof. Herbert Shubin and Mrs. Sibyl Michaels sent four latest-type Bennett respirators which saved many badly wounded men. In London, the Ramat Hashikma branch organized an express drive for and despatch of medical supplies. People of small means throughout free Europe made gifts to the hospital. The Society received from two Dutch children, Dan and Ruth Rosenthal, a $1,500 cheque, their entire Bar-mitzva fund. In Europe, some suppliers were helpful, others stalled, and when they did the orders were switched to alternative sources. One German supplier of a rare and important medicine opened on Sunday to fill an order and refused to accept any payment.

In Israel, says Mrs. Cohen, synagogue congregations aloof in the past collected money for buying air-conditions, which helped the wounded soldiers a great deal in the hot wards. We turned to a number of companies, and received substantial gifts — TV sets, transistors, and ventilators, among other things."

The Ramat Hashikma and other volunteers, individuals and members of women's organizations, and Gideon youngsters, took on every type of hospital work. "They carried stretchers, in fact any kind of load, cleaned up, distributed food, drove families of the wounded men to or from the hospital, offered those from out of town hospitality at their homes," Mrs. Cohen also has a word of praise for the Customs staff. "They let us move the supplies from the airport to the wards without delay. Everything moved with speed. I hope this kind of efficiency outlasts the war."

Held for robbing shepherd of IL800

Bethlehem police yesterday arrested a 20-year-old man from the D'heishah refugee camp south of the town on suspicion of stealing IL800 in cash from a shepherd near Artas, in the Hebron Hills, last week.

The man, who was identified from an identikit reconstruction based on the shepherd's description, is alleged to have held up his victim with a toy revolver. The shepherd offered no resistance, handed over the money, and reported the incident to police in Bethlehem.

TO THE PEOPLE OF ISRAEL

We share your grief for each precious life lost, for each person maimed or wounded and for the sacrifice made by all Israelis. You are ever in our thoughts and prayers.

Together we are committed to Israel. We shall work ceaselessly for our common goal — a just and lasting peace for Israel.

In sorrow, love and determination —

JEWISH COMMUNITY COUNCIL OF BOSTON
72 Franklin Street
Boston, Massachusetts 02173

'MART SPEAKS WITH ONE VOICE'

Home: Europe security depends on U.S. help

(UPI) — British Foreign Secretary Sir Alec Douglas-Home yesterday said Europe's security depends on U.S. help. He said the United States must be seen to be cooperating with the United Kingdom and France in a common front.

Speaking to members of the Press Association, Sir Alec said: "The last year has seen a new and potentially positive approach to international security. The European Community has found an identity in the world. It will soon express its views on various issues, must be seen to be cooperating with the United States."

He said the last year has seen a new and potentially positive approach to international security. The European Community has found an identity in the world. It will soon express its views on various issues, must be seen to be cooperating with the United States.

Defending his Middle East policy, Home said it had been proved right by events, stressing that there can be no peace in the Middle East on a continuing basis of the occupation.

He said Britain holds herself ready to play her part in a Middle East peace settlement as a member of the U.N. Security Council. Britain has been seeking a role for herself ever since cease-fire talks began earlier this month and has repeatedly offered British troops participation in an international police force for the area.

Home skirted questions on the Community's failure to stand by Holland in the face of the Arab oil embargo.

He said the Arabs have not asked Britain either to sever relations with Israel or to sell them arms as a price for future oil supplies.

Police officer with wire cutters forces a woman who had chained herself to a lamp post in King Charles Street off Whitehall in London yesterday. The woman's gesture was part of a drive by the Women's Campaign for Soviet Jewry to attract attention before British Foreign Secretary Sir Alec Douglas-Home visits the Soviet Union next month. (AP radio photo)

DUTCH P.M. ON OIL EMBARGO

Ab demands go 'too far'

DAM — Premier Joop den Uyl yesterday said the conditions for lifting of the embargo "went far too far."

In the Senate, he said, den Uyl advocated a balanced, not a one-sided pro-Arab solution should include organized borders for Israel and Palestinian rights.

Understood that the Arab demands go "too far," den Uyl said the Netherlands would not accept the Arab demands. He said the Arab demands go "too far."

Den Uyl told the public that the embargo had resulted in a saving of car fuel. He said the embargo had resulted in a saving of car fuel.

Den Uyl told the public that the embargo had resulted in a saving of car fuel. He said the embargo had resulted in a saving of car fuel.

Nixon cuts gas deliveries, imposes lower speed limit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon is cutting the amount of gasoline available to motorists by 15 per cent, lowering speed limits to 55 mph for cars and 60 mph for trucks, curtailing home heating oil deliveries, and having Christmas lights switched off in an effort to deal with America's energy crisis.

He asked gas stations to close voluntarily at 5 p.m. each Saturday until midnight on Sunday, starting next weekend. Nixon announced in a television address on Sunday he would use emergency powers to make this mandatory, as soon as he gets an energy bill from Congress, perhaps by mid-December. The rationing programme for heating oil is to take effect on January 1.

Another possible step is a cut in electric power during peak demand periods — reductions called "brown-outs."

Calling for "discipline, self-restraint and unity," Nixon outlined steps to overcome what he said was the most serious threat to the economy since the war. He said the economy was in a "state of emergency."

Nixon acknowledged economic dislocations were likely, and promised to try to see "that any disruptions to our economy which may occur are short-lived and that they do not cause lasting damage."

The Mafia is all ready to go with counterfeit coupons should President Nixon decide on gas rationing for the nation, "Time" magazine said in an article published on Sunday.

"The Mafia seems better organized for gas rationing than the government," "Time" said. "Mafia chiefs already have lined up printing firms to produce counterfeit ration coupons, and held a series of conferences to decide which don will control the counterfeiting racket in each area."

Russians outbuilding U.S. navy

NEW YORK (AP) — The Russians are outbuilding the American navy in every category of ships and "the spectre of a powerful Russian fleet astride the world's trade routes and patrolling its trouble spots is a new prospect that many U.S. strategists view with alarm."

"Newsweek" on Sunday devoted a major article to Russia's new naval muscle which, it said, virtually neutralized the U.S. Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean during the Middle East war.

"That may have been the first time since World War II that American sea power has been so dramatically blunted. For Russia it was a striking accomplishment," the magazine said.

"Newsweek" traced the rise of the modern growing Soviet navy from the days when Stalin ordered construction of a huge submarine fleet against the power of U.S. aircraft carriers which could bomb the Russian heartland. Carrying this forward, Soviet naval chief Admiral Sergei Gorshkov argued for what he described as a balanced navy — in Western terms meaning a fleet with offensive punch.

"Newsweek's" commentary added: "What Moscow intends to do with this new naval might is a hotly debated question. In the view of some American naval strategists, the Russians are shooting at nothing less than a 'blue water' navy — one that can steam far from Soviet home waters to dominate the seas. As they see it, the backbone of U.S. naval supremacy, overwhelming air power based on its 14 attack carriers, is now being challenged..."

"But not all Western analysts view Soviet naval activity as a push for out-and-out 'sea control.' Disasters argue that, whatever Moscow's long-term plans, for the foreseeable future the U.S. navy, with its diversity and firepower, will continue to dominate the oceans. For some elements of the Soviet navy at least, distance from home ports would be greatly reduced by reopening of the Suez Canal — a likely outcome of any new Arab-Israeli agreement. Using the Canal, Russia would be in position to extend its sea arm more readily to the vicinity of the Persian Gulf, a major source of the Western world's oil. But even without the Canal, Soviet strategists are maneuvering to step up the strength and usefulness of their fleet at a furious pace..."

Soviet historian exiled to Arctic

Egypt asks Mart for free wheat

Laurence Harvey dies at 45

MOSCOW (AP) — Dissident historian Andrei Amalrik has been ordered to serve three years of internal exile in the Magadan province of the Soviet Far East, dissident sources reported yesterday.

The dissident, who lived in a sparsely inhabited area on the sea of Okhotsk near the Arctic Circle has living one of the most brutal climates in the Soviet Union.

Amalrik, 35, had been serving a second three-year labour camp term in Magadan for alleged defamation of the Soviet state. But on November 13, a Moscow appeals court lessened the punishment to three years in exile, citing "ill health" for the decision. He had suffered from meningitis in the labour camp.

In a similar case, a Moscow court yesterday ordered mathematician Yuri Shikhanovich confined to a mental home, dissident sources said. The court said Shikhanovich was not fit to stand trial on a charge of distributing anti-Soviet material.

The sources said an unfavourable psychiatric report was read to the court. When his lawyer asked if the three psychiatrists who signed it had ever seen Shikhanovich, she was told this had nothing to do with the case.

Dr. Shikhanovich has been held incommunicado for 14 months. This is five months longer than Soviet law allows.

Defence lawyer Yelena Resnikova complained to the court that she had not been allowed to visit Shikhanovich in a secret police prison in Moscow. She asked the court to let the defendant attend the hearing and asked a delay so she could confer with him. The court refused both appeals.

Shikhanovich was a lecturer in mathematics at Moscow State University until 1968, when he signed a letter demanding the release of a fellow teacher confined in a mental hospital.

BRUSSELS (AP) — Egypt has asked the Common Market countries for the equivalent of 450,000 tons of wheat in the form of aid for 1974, a spokesman for the Common Market Executive Commission said yesterday.

The request was made on August 14, he added. The Egyptians want 300,000 tons of soft wheat and 150,000 tons of flour, which together are equivalent to 450,000 tons of wheat. The nine countries have made a regular practice of giving away wheat, powdered milk and other food products, which in the past have been surplus, to the world's poorer countries.

Now these products are in relatively short supply.

The spokesman said that the Egyptian request is being studied by experts as part of the overall aid programme for next year, which is to be submitted to the commission in the coming weeks.

LONDON (AP) — British movie star Laurence Harvey died of cancer at his London home on Sunday night, friends reported yesterday. He was 45.

The actor with the soft, suave manner had been ill for the past 18 months. Friends called on him repeatedly in recent weeks.

Harvey was married for the third time at the end of last year. His bride was fashion model Paulene Stone, mother of his three-year-old daughter Domino.

Harvey's previous wives were American millionaires Joan Cohn and British actress Margaret Leighton. Both marriages ended in divorce.

Harvey never attained the highest ranks of international stardom, but his performances in such movies as "Room at the Top," "The Manchurian Candidate," "I am a Camera" and "Darling" established him in the U.S. as well as Britain.

His bride of less than a year tended the Lithuanian-born actor during months of illness at his elegant London home. Harvey, born Larushka Mischka Slikine, underwent surgery to remove a cancerous growth in his throat in 1971.

Harvey was in Israel a few years ago to visit members of his family.

Super-tank may be price

NEW YORK (AP) — "Newsweek" said on Sunday that Japan might have to trade a military brainchild for a guarantee that Arab oil will flow again.

"Part of the price Japan may have to pay to insure an unbroken flow of Arab oil (source of forty per cent of the country's energy) could be a 'super tank' now on the drawing boards at Mitsubishi Heavy Industries."

"Fast and heavily armoured, the tank is equipped with both missiles and a conventional cannon. Japanese Government policy bans export of weapons, but the would-be Arab purchasers don't think that prohibition would apply to the technology to build the super tank."

Belsen 'saviour' Glyn Hughes dies at 81

LONDON (INA) — Brigadier Hugh Llewelyn Glyn Hughes who helped to liberate Bergen-Belsen and save many of its inmates, has died here at the age of 81.

Physician, military doctor, administrator, sportsman, and humanitarian, Brigadier Glyn Hughes was the medical officer of the Second Army which liberated Belsen on April 15, 1945. As chief medical officer, he worked over many months to restore the health of many inmates.

The brigadier was for a number of years president of the Bridge, an organization which arranges the exchange of young people between Britain and Israel for periods of work and study. For a number of years after the war, he was chief administrative medical officer of the South-East Metropolitan Regional Hospital Board.

He was educated at University College Hospital. He was president of the Barbarians, the rugby football club.

YOUNG EXECUTIVE

Management, Organization, Languages, PR Projects
SEEKS CHALLENGING POSITION
No. 58739/L, P.O.B. 1334, Tel Aviv.

U.S. DEFENCE BILL CUT

WASHINGTON (AP) — A $74,500,000 appropriation bill, scrapping $100 million of the new U.S. armed forces, the committee also voted to impose minimum mental-education quotas for volunteers and urged the military to weed out 6,500 poor performers and men with disciplinary problems.

Committee also chopped $240 million long range missile.

Share index falls

TEL AVIV — The public's attitude towards recent events has been expressed in a fall in the stock market yesterday. The general index of share prices fell by 0.92 per cent to stand at 246.73.

Yesterday's volume increased to 36,417,375 shares.

BEEF PRICES DROP IN 14 COUNTRIES

WASHINGTON (AP) — Beef prices have dropped lately in 14 world capitals, partly because consumers have turned to more chicken and other less-expensive meat, the U.S. Agriculture Department said Sunday.

This shift, however, put more pressure on supplies of pork and broilers, and kept prices near or above September levels, the Foreign Agricultural Service said in a report.

Thus, the report said, food prices generally have shown erratic increases and declines during the past two months and "obscure any clear trend" in the cost of eating.

527 killed in U.S. Thanksgiving crashes

NEW YORK (AP) — More than 500 persons died in traffic accidents in the U.S. during the Thanksgiving holiday weekend.

Table with 4 columns: Share, Price, Change, Volume. Includes various stocks like Conk Can, Conk Oil, etc.

Table with 4 columns: Share, Price, Change, Volume. Includes various stocks like Conk Can, Conk Oil, etc.

ANGLO-ISRAELI INVESTORS LIMITED

14 Rehov Hillel, Jerusalem

NOTICE

ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING

Notice is hereby given that the tenth Annual General Meeting of the Company will be held on Tuesday, December 18, 1973, at 11 a.m. at the offices of The Israel Land Development Co. Ltd., 14 Rehov Hillel, Jerusalem.

AGENDA

- Approval of the Balance Sheet as at June 30, 1973, the Profit and Loss Account for the year ended on that date, including the Reports of the Auditors and Directors.
- Approval of Dividend.
- Election of Directors.
- Appointment of Auditors and fixing their fees.
- Consideration of any other ordinary business that may be transacted at a General Meeting.

In accordance with Article 49 of the Articles of Association of the Company, any bearer of warrants of the Company is entitled to attend and vote at the above meeting in person or by his proxy, provided that his warrants are deposited in his name at the office of the Company at least three days before the day of the meeting, and remain so deposited until the meeting or any adjournment thereof has been held.

Proxies must reach the office of the Company at least 48 hours before the time fixed for the meeting.

By order of the Board
J. Llav, Advocate
Secretary

Bank Ltd. EXCHANGE Monday's Rates

2.3575/80	per $
2.6525/50	per $
3.2160/2200	per $
4.534/4.544	per $
4.644/4.654	per $
6.054/6.064	per $
6.594/6.604	per $
7.194/7.204	per $
8.894/8.904	per $

U.S. SECURITIES
OSCAR GRUSS AND SON
Members, New York Stock Exchange
Tel Aviv Representative: NATHAN ENGEL
61961/24, Tel. 3347 — Shalom Mayer Tower, 18th floor.

WORLD ZIONIST ORGANIZATION
IMMIGRATION & ABSORPTION DEPT.
TOUR VE'ALEH

TOURISTS — POTENTIAL SETTLERS — INVESTORS and BUSINESSMEN looking for suitable projects in Industry-Commerce or Agriculture for full factual information consult our ECONOMIC COUNSELLING DIVISION

Tel Aviv — 68 Rehov Hillel (corner Neveat King David) near the Haifa Tel. 33-38423
Haifa — 135 Nefertiti Hanaoui Tel. 98194
Jerusalem — 1 Rehov Hillel Tel. 33519

ACCLIMAT the most popular domestic oil heater in Europe and the most sold in Israel

527 killed in U.S. Thanksgiving crashes

UNITED HEATING COMPANY LTD.
Haifa 532102 Tel Aviv 240492 Jerusalem 223705 Beer Sheva 3557

COLD IN THE GOLAN

TOURS of the front lines and conversations with soldiers lead to the conclusion that the winter — like the war — seems to have taken the army by surprise. Conditions are particularly difficult in the north, where the men in the field are soaked and buffeted by driving rain during the day and suffer hard frost at night. As the winter sets in, the need for better warm and waterproof equipment is also being felt acutely along the Jordan, in Sinai, and across the Canal too. Desert nights are very cold.

The army contends that it has an order of priorities with the key Hermon outposts heading the list — and that by now winter clothing is being supplied to all units in the Golan; they have been seen on television newsreels. But many soldiers serving in the north have been heard to say that the only heated tents, the only snow-suits they have seen have been, in fact, on television.

Granted, six weeks ago the Quartermasters Corps did not expect that they would have to find clothing for so many extra men in a harsh winter. But six weeks — four of them since the cease-fire — should have been long enough to get extra winter wear for the reserve troops — just as they were enough to get arms, ammunition, fuel and food.

A man whose boots are sodden, or whose fingers are stiff because he has no gloves, tends to view everything very differently from a man with waterproof boots, warm gloves, woollen helmet for his ears, and an oil stove in his tent.

Furthermore, some of the equipment that has been issued — to the soldiers on snow-capped Mt. Hermon for instance — seem singularly ill-conceived. Dark-coloured jackets are conspicuous in the snow; armies used to fighting in winter put their men in the field in white. And the best way of keeping feet warm and dry is by keeping them out of the snow with some simple form of snowshoes. One doesn't need much training to wear them. They also make walking on snow-covered snow slopes and drifts easier and safer.

Even the Chaplain's department was apparently not prepared for the call-up. The Religious Affairs Ministry has stepped in with a scheme which the army authorities might study for possible adaptation to the problem of winter supplies. The Ministry has appealed to the Jewish public, in Israel and abroad, to contribute religious requisites for the soldiers. The initial response has been very good, say the Ministry officials. Tomorrow, for instance, a group of members of the Presidents Conference will arrive in Israel for its meeting here bearing 25 Tora scrolls and 100 sets of tefillin — received from New York Jews with the aid of the Israel Consulate-General there.

The same idea might well be applied to any shortages of winter clothing that still remain. The many Jewish clothing manufacturers in the U.S. and Europe, as well as people here, would be glad of a useful opportunity to help the army by supplying, say, warm underwear, or gloves, or socks, in abundance.

Of course the major items of uniform could not be enlisted in this way — and indeed the army is well on the way to providing every soldier with a heavy waterproof coat lined and hooded with quilt.

But for smaller items that are important both for comfort and efficiency the army could quite properly turn to the public to make good the shortages.

THE late unpleasantness apparently failed to produce a "Tipperary" or a "Jerusalem of Gold," let alone an agreed-upon name for the war. It seemed at one time that it would be known as "The Yom Kippur War," though this was challenged by "The War of the Day of Judgment." Now, Mr. Shimon Peres has taken to referring to it as "The War of the Sons" while the enemy seems to fancy "The October War."

Judging by what has been happening in the rear echelons, an apter definition would be "The War of Words." Never before in the field of human conflict can there have been a greater outpouring of rumours, accusations, counter-accusations, breastbeating and parading of opinions on the conduct of the war (and the peace) in such a short space of time.

Now things are not always what they seem and I've begun to derive some comfort from the words of that lovely fella, Edmund Burke, written nearly two centuries ago: "Because half a dozen grasshoppers under a fern make the field ring with their importunate chink, whilst thousands of great cattle... chew the cud and are silent, pray do not imagine that those who make the noise are the only inhabitants of the field; that, of course, they are many in number; or that, after all, they are other than the little shrivelled, meagre, hopping, though loud and troublesome insects of the hour."

With Prejudice ! by Alex Berlyne

Unfortunately Mr. Burke did not venture an opinion on the damage these creepy-crawly may cause, but I think it's fairly plain that they can persuade their enemy that they are a divided people and tempt him to take advantage of this apparent weakness. In fact, one of the main themes of "The Causes of War," a book published recently by the Professor of Economic History at Melbourne, Geoffrey Blainey, is that a mistaken perception of disunity in the enemy's ranks may propel a nation into war. His thesis is that a false notion of the relative strengths of rival powers brings about war and that a reappraisal ends them. In terms of President Sadat's calculations at the beginning and end of October, it would seem that Professor Blainey has something there.

It would be a pity if the Egyptians were to be misled by the strident cries of the politicians and the press calling for inquiries into the conduct of the war, demanding and opposing elections or supporting and opposing changes in the law whereby serving officers may not stand for the Knesset.

What we need, more than all these issues combined, is some sort of moratorium on washing our dirty linen in public. Now, more than ever before, we have to close ranks and present a united front even at the cost of what is mistakenly called democracy.

Precious freedom

That true democracy existed in England during World War II is, I think, beyond question, yet during the Emergency, as it was officially termed, the people were eager to surrender some of their precious freedom in return for positive leadership waging a vigorous war.

Following the passing of the Emergency Powers (Defence) Act all known Nazi or Fascist sympathisers were rounded up under Regulation 18 and imprisoned without trial for the duration of the war. Hardly a voice was raised in protest, and the general feeling was that Voltaire could go and get stuffed. Here, on the other hand, Communist Members of the Knesset took the rostrum to publish their poisonous views and while I was patrolling the blacked-out streets I was interested to see a number of eligible young men belonging to Matzpen huddled around a candle in "their" cafe, night after night, presumably plotting the overthrow of the Government.

In 1940, the British made it an offence, punishable by a £50 fine (approximately five months average income), to pass on any rumour likely to cause alarm and despondency. If such a law had been enforced here Mr. Sapir wouldn't have found it necessary to slap on more taxes.

Following Chamberlain's dismissal, Churchill formed a National Government and the General Elections scheduled for 1940 simply never took place until the enemy had been defeated. I don't believe for a moment that the election circus is necessary or desirable except for a handful of professional politicians who, anyway, should have been taken into some form of coalition weeks ago. Who can afford all these distractions when the goal is clear? We went into the war blundered by all sorts of side issues including the pressing problem of staff appointments at Israel Aircraft Industries and we're still dithering about.

Make no bones about it, the nonsense is damaging to the war — an incalculable factor in the war. The steady factors have been few, almost drowned out by the cries of little men. A place of honour must be reserved for Aluf (Brigadier) Herzog who, in my opinion, I can only compare his broadness to those "Footscrapers" by J.B. Priestley which rallied Britain in the days of 1940.

Munich architect

Despite the re-emergence of Le Duncanson (baptized metamorphosed the Earl of Home), one of the architects of Munich, into the corridors of power as Foreign Secretary, Alec Douglas-Home, we should be misled about Britain. We learn a lot from their conduct of war against the Nazi evil.

One of their slogans, in the dark days, was "Britain Can Do It," generally expressed by the dinary man in dog-Latin as: "Illegitimum Carborundum" which translation, means "Don't let bastards grind you down." The common-sense determination, humour, in the face of appalling casualties and, for a long time, a complete isolation, should serve as example to us all.

KISSINGER'S FIRST 10 WEEKS

By JAMES RESTON

WASHINGTON. — In the 10 weeks since the 15th Secretary of State of the United States, Henry Kissinger has covered more miles, visited more countries, answered more questions, and probably consumed more food and proposed more toasts than any of his predecessors since John Foster Dulles.

Already in these 10 weeks, he has gone through one Middle East war, a scary worldwide military alert against the Russians, innumerable sessions with other foreign ministers at the U.N., and endless meetings with members of Congress, his new colleagues in the State Department, and his sceptical watchdogs of the press.

It has been an impressive performance, but it's hell on the nerves, the mind and the waistline, and, unless somebody invents the 48-hour day, you have to wonder how long he can sustain this punishing pace.

Time to think

Henry Kissinger didn't get where he is today because he was a great personality, or traveller, or insider, but precisely because he was an outsider who had time to think and was in touch with other loners who were reflecting on the basic purposes and vital interests of the nation.

Now he is caught up in a tangle of problems that require more time than he has and also require, as he says, at least "a modicum of confidence between the public and the responsible officials." And he is appealing, almost pleading, to the press and the public to give him a chance to work things out.

It is a fair enough request, but it is not going to be easy, for he has been saying some things lately that require more than a "modicum of confidence." For example, he said at his last news conference that U.S. policy in the Middle East would not be influenced by the Arab oil embargo, but the fact is that American policy is clearly being influenced at every corner gas station, and Kissinger is now leaning heavily on the Israelis in private to hurry up the negotiations and make substantial concessions to the Arabs to lift the oil embargo and get a general Middle East settlement.

Also, Kissinger has been warning the Arab states publicly but gently that the United States would have to consider "countermeasures" if the Arabs continue their economic warfare, but again the fact is that Washington has few countermeasures and cannot mount an effective counterembargo against the Arab states without the cooperation of all the other industrial nations, which won't go along.

Meanwhile, Kissinger is refusing to explain, as he promised to do, what the Soviet Union threatened during the Middle East crisis that justified putting U.S. forces all over the world on "alert." Did Eisenhower say he "might" or that he "would" send Soviet airborne troops into the Middle East? Did Brezhnev actually send atomic weapons into Egypt? Kissinger says he has no "confirmed" evidence that this was the case. He is merely asking for people to trust him.

Nevertheless, though Kissinger is appealing for "confidence" in an Administration that has little confidence, he has earned in his Peking and Moscow missions a right to try to work out an accommodation in the Middle East. For, to a large extent, the easing of the fuel shortage in the United States depends on the negotiations for a peace settlement in the Middle East, and this in turn depends probably more than it should on the integrity, judgment, and negotiating skill of Secretary Kissinger.

Americans can cut their speed to 50 miles an hour and knock back their heads at 85 degrees at home — what a sacrifice! — but unless Kissinger gets the Arab-Israeli talks going in a hurry and persuades both sides that an accommodation is better than more military wars and an expanding economic war, the non-Communist industrial nations of the United States, Western Europe and Japan will quickly be up against an economic recession.

Critical role

Maybe this is what Moscow wants. Having failed to keep up with the computer revolution in the advanced industrial nations, the Russians could be using their political influence in the Middle East to cut down the production in the West and in Japan. But we won't know that until the negotiations between the Arabs and the Israelis solved either by this group of get going and here Kissinger's role is both critical and awkward.

Henry Kissinger briefs President Nixon on board Air Force 1.

"If one looks at history," he told the press the other day, "and sees how often it has happened that wars have been produced by the rivalries of client states, without a full consideration of the worldwide issues... the overriding need of finding a solution to the problems of worldwide nuclear war becomes overwhelming... This is the central question of our period, and it is a problem that will have to be solved either by this group of get going and here Kissinger's role is both critical and awkward."

It has been a long time in the capital since any Secretary of State has dealt in public with so many dangerous and ambiguous questions under such difficult circumstances at home and abroad, and if a energy crisis is to be eased, Kissinger is probably the man who can reach some kind of understanding. Kissinger is probably the man who can reach some kind of understanding. Kissinger is probably the man who can reach some kind of understanding.

Egypt: "Brothers, please, some moderation!"

ISRAEL PRESS

Arab summit in Algiers

Hatzofe (National Religious) comments on the difference of opinion among the participants at the Algiers Arab summit and anticipates a competition of extremist slogans, which will make agreement to a peace conference difficult for those Arab states who want it. The entrance of the Palestinians on the summit scene will also not make things easier. The results of Algiers will largely determine the fate of the peace conference. They will at least show to some degree whether the Arabs are ready for peace or want to go on with the war. Judging by the preliminaries, the latter seems likelier.

Davar (Histadrut) notes that Israel's consent to a peace conference — in principle, so far — was unconditional, on the assumption that the Arab side would also agree unconditionally. However, there is no sign of that yet. The Algiers conference is opening in the sign of extreme conditions: "moderate" Bourguiba presents a "minimum programme" of returning to the 1947 partition lines. Gaddafi chimes in from Paris with the demand of Israel's liquidation and the expulsion of all Jews who immigrated after 1947, and Damascus says it will not come to the conference table unless the Golan Heights are returned first.

Al Hamaahar (Mapam) sees Israel standing on the brink of a political struggle which involves risks, but also prospects: For the first time, Israeli and Arab representatives are about to meet at diplomatic level. Israel must prepare proposals and initiatives contributing to the settlement of the dispute. The paper hopes that the intransigent attitude now evident at Km101 are merely designed to impress the Arab summit.

Readers' letters

Katz supported and disputed

To the Editor of The Jerusalem Post Sir, — I should like to suggest to your readers that they send the article by Shmuel Katz "The assault of Soviet imperialism" (November 18) to all their friends and relatives in the States, requesting them to forward it to their respective congressmen.

This "open letter" seems to me so impressively logical that it should reach the most influential levels in the U.S. where our policy (and fate) actually are decided.

Haifa, November 18.

H. NETIVI

To the Editor of The Jerusalem Post Sir, — Mr. Katz, of the Land of Israel Movement, sounds the alarm in his open letter of November 18. He chastises Dr. Kissinger for forcing us to accept the "punitive ceasefire agreement" and compares the scenario with that of Chamberlain's Munich Pact. In fact, however, the cease-fire agreement, which leaves us in control of the Cairo-Suez road and part of Egypt and Syria proper is rather to our advantage. So why the alarm?

Mr. Katz wants Israel to "hold the fort against Soviet expansion," even to be "the last bulwark of the West against Soviet imperialism." Now, it is inconceivable that tiny Israel should take on such a gigantic and unthankful job because it would certainly bring us into collision with one of the two superpowers, with catastrophic consequences for our people. It was only the threat of active intervention by the second superpower, the U.S., that prevented a direct Russian attack upon Israel during those fateful October days. In view of the consequent world reaction it is hardly probable that the U.S. will risk again a world atomic holocaust for our benefit.

Further, Mr. Katz advocates that we should absorb the Arab minority "with full rights" and thus prevent the withdrawal from any part of the territory occupied in the Six Day War. It is besides the point that such an attitude would result about a condition of perpetual war with our Arab neighbours, as well as the sacrifice of the lives of generations of young Israelis, something we certainly cannot afford. But Mr. Katz ought to be aware that 1.5m. Arabs having equal rights with the Jews would, by their fertility, outnumber the Jews within a certain period of time and then take over the rule of the country without further ado.

It appears to me that Dr. Kissinger's efforts leading to a genuine peace agreement and successive withdrawals to secure and guaranteed borders is the only visible reasonable solution that could put an end to the protracted war between Israel and the Arabs.

EPHRAIM SINGER

Tel Aviv, November 17.

SYRIAN JEWS

To the Editor of The Jerusalem Post Sir, — As a result of the Syrian attack, the Israeli army is today nearer than ever to Damascus. Yet the Syrians act like conquerors and have the impudence to impose conditions for the return of our prisoners of war, notwithstanding the stipulations of the Geneva Convention. As they know how much we cherish and value each and every man, they are demanding that we allow the return of 15,000 people to the areas we are holding. Why not demand in return, in addition to our prisoners of war, the long-suffering, oppressed handful of Syrian Jews?

HAIM REISKIN

Netanya, November 18.

RESERVE DUTY FOR WOMEN

To the Editor of The Jerusalem Post Sir, — If there was one vital lesson we learned from this war, it was the need to maintain a reserve army duty system for women so that, in times of crisis, they will be fully equipped to meet the emergencies on the home front.

I see no reason why compulsory reserve duty for childless and unmarried women should be waived. If a woman is in good health, she is quite capable, up to the age of 50, of filling many of the gaps left by men called up to defend the survival of the nation.

In peace time, a month of army duty each year will do wonders in aiding the integration process of women immigrants. It is impossible to really become an Israeli unless one lives as an Israeli, and that includes all forms of service to one's country. Amongst several immigrant families of my acquaintance, the husband who has been called to reserve duty has integrated much better than the wife who has remained at home.

GREER FAY CASEMAN

Jerusalem, November 20.

SELECTIVE BUYING

To the Editor of The Jerusalem Post Sir, — As a trading nation, let us not speak of government-sponsored boycotts. But how about we consumers doing a little selective buying in favour of our friends? In the purchase of high-ticket items, let us favour the products of the U.S.A., Holland and Denmark.

STANLEY DANIELMAN

Rahovot, November 8.

THE WAR OF THE RABBIS

To the Editor of The Jerusalem Post Sir, — The politicians do it, the generals do it, and now the Rabbi does it.

Rabbi Hachoen demeans himself and the organization he represents in the eye of the public with his criticism of his colleagues.

S.A. RUMBY

Givatayim, November 18.

Reader's Digest

AMERICAN EDITION

October 1973

- * The Medicines We Need But Can't Have
- * 50 New Ways to Cut Food Costs
- * A New Way to Trim Your Meat Bill
- * The Day I Met Harry Truman
- * Would "National" Health Care Work Here?
- * Henry Ford: Corporate Superstar — Fortune
- * Is Population Control Impossible?
- * No Taxation Without Representation
- * Can Career and Motherhood Mix? — N.Y. Times Magazine
- * Is There Intelligent Life on Earth? — Time
- * The Fascinating World of Diamonds

— Ronald Schiller

sole distributor

Steimatzky's

Again Available

ORBIS BOOKS

- * Japanese Flower Arranging
- * Military Uniforms
- * Fishing — Fish Tackle and Bait
- * Firearms
- * Racing Cars
- * Formula 1 Cars

ORBIS —

WORLD OF WILDLIFE

- * Africa — Struggle for Survival in the Bush

ORBIS —

WORLD OF NATURE

- * The World Beneath the Sea
- * The Flowering Wilderness
- * The World of Minerals

Steimatzky's

Jerusalem-Tel Aviv-Rahovot-Lod-Petah

LARGEST CHAIN OF BOOKSTORES IN ISRAEL

AEROPLANE MONTHLY

September 1973

sole distributor

Steimatzky's

"19"

SEPTEMBER ISSUE

sole distributor

Steimatzky's

MAGEN DAVID ADOM

NOTICE

The results of the draw held on November 13, 1973, are on display in all pharmacies and Magen David Adom posts

BAR-ILAN UNIVERSITY

Office of the Rector

FILING OF STUDY PROGRAMMES FOR THE ACADEMIC YEAR 1973/74

The Rector, Prof. M.Z. Kadari, advises students of all years who have not yet arranged their study programmes for the 1973/74 academic year, or who have not yet submitted their programmes for approval by the Academic Secretariat, that they may file such programmes between Wednesday, November 28, and Wednesday, December 5 (9 a.m.-12 noon). Those students who have been called up or are serving as volunteers will be able to file their programmes at a later date, just before studies commence.

Students who have been called up may also deal with this matter through the post.

MINISTRY OF FINANCE

Dept. of Customs and Excise

IMMIGRANTS' RIGHTS

The new regulations covering immigrants' rights details of which have been published in the Press come into effect on January 1, 1973.